

4.1. About London. Dans chaque couple de mots en gras il y a un intrus. Trouve-le et trace-le.

In 1066 William Tell / the Conqueror built the Tower of London to control England. Later it was a prison / swimming pool. Today it is a museum / an airport. A lot of visitors are interested in the famous dinosaurs / ravens. A story says that it will be the end of England / the Universe if the dinosaurs / ravens leave the Tower.

Hyde Park and Regent's Park are not just tennis courts / parks. In Regent's Park there is a natural iceberg / large zoo. The most famous / forgotten part of Hyde Park is Speaker's Corner, where people stand on eggs / boxes and make speeches about almost nothing / everything: for or against school, for or against alcohol, etc.

Most foreign astronauts / visitors go to Madame Tussaud's wax museum. School classes from all over Britain and from Timbuktu / the Continent come to this museum to look at the wax figures of famous people from the past and future / present.

to conquer: conquérir
 raven: corbeau
 part: partie

speech: discours
 foreign: étranger

4.2. On Sunday. Lis l'article de John Dempsey et réponds aux questions avec:

- Yes, he does - No, he doesn't - No, doesn't. - Yes, he is - No, he isn't - Yes, he has -

I love Sundays! I walk to the newsagent's at the railway station and buy my Sunday newspaper, have a chat to Abdul Hashim, the Pakistani shopkeeper. Then I go back home for breakfast. I enjoy a good old, traditional British breakfast: bacon, eggs, fried bread, and toast and marmalade afterwards. And, of course, a big pot of tea. I take my time reading the newspapers.

John Dempsey buys his newspaper after breakfast.

The shopkeeper is from India.

John talks to the shopkeeper for a while.....

John has something typically British for breakfast.

He has toast and marmalade first, then the cooked breakfast.....

John reads his newspaper quickly.