

See the on the doorstep now
 My oh my
 Telling everybody, oh just how.....
 Sliding down the information highway in just like a bunch of Time is ticking and.....
 My oh my

What about the.....
 What about that we call home
 We've never been so.....
 And we've never been ...
 So alone

Keep watching from your picket.....
 You keep talking but it no sense
 You say.....
 But we are, we are
 You wash hands
 You come out.....
 But fail to the enemy's within
 You..... we're not responsible
 But we are, we are
 We are

One forward, making two steps.....
 My oh my
 Riding piggy on the back
 For life
 Lining up for the grand illusion
 No for no asked
 Lining up for the execution

Keep watching from your picket fence...

It's all about, bout taking control
 Breaking the will ,and raping the soul
 They suck us dry 'til there's left
 My oh my My oh my

What..... the world today
 What about the..... that we call home
 We've never..... so many
 And we've never been ...
 So.....
 Keep watching from your picket fence...

We Are is the soundtrack of

Spiderman

Peter Parker was just a normal High School science nerd (=Freak), until he was bitten by a radioactive spider during a science demonstration. Finding himself gifted (=doué) with the skills and abilities of a spider such as strength, speed, agility, and the ability to cling (=coller) to any surface, he did what any other red-blooded teenage male would do. He became a superhero. His path was never easy though, beginning with the death of his Uncle and the realization that with great power comes great responsibility. He goes on to face criminal masterminds, smear campaigns, enraged mutants, and a hostile public. Spiderman never stays down for long though, and he fights the good fight armed with his intelligence, powers, and sarcastic wit.
