

Animals: budgie (perruche), ~~bull~~, cat, chicken, crocodile, dog, lion, cow, guinea pig (cochon d'Inde), donkey (âne), monkey, sheep, hamster, parrot (perroquet), pig, snake, goldfish, elephant, goose, rabbit, horse, ox, rat, fox, squirrel (écureuil), hare (lièvre), badger (blaireau), deer (cerf), wild pig

Sort out (trie):

Living with the family:

PETS (= „animaux de compagnie“)

budgie.....

.....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....

Living on a farm:

DOMESTIC ANIMALS

bull.....

.....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....

Living in the woods or the zoo:

WILD ANIMALS

crocodile.....

.....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....
 .....

What is it?

It likes to chase birds and mice. ....

You go with it for a walk every day. ....

It's the king of the animals.....

It gives us the wool.....

It lives in the water, has a very big mouth.....

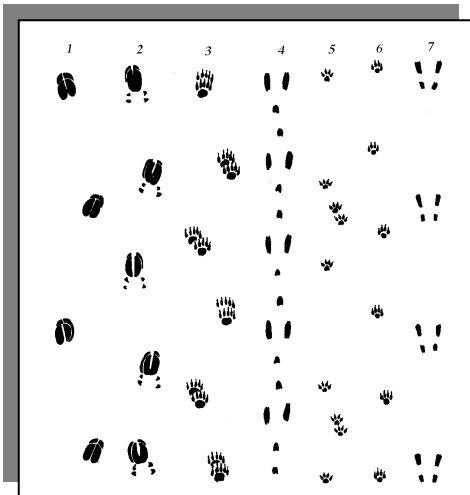

It gives us milk, cream, and cheese.....

Good for bacon and sausages.....

A nice singer that sometimes even talks.....

It likes bananas and climbs trees.....

Grey and very heavy, with a long nose.....

What was it?

1. ....
2. ....
3. ....
4. ....
5. ....
6. ....
7. ....

(a squirrel? a fox? a deer? a badger? a cat? a wild pig? a hare?)

Gender (sexe des animaux)

Pour les animaux domestiques, on emploie les pronoms he ou she, selon le sexe de l'animal. Quand on est par ex. en visite, on désignera le chien de la famille par he, le chat par she – car le sexe des chiens et des chats n'est pas reconnaissable au premier coup d'oeil.

Un chien des rues, un chat vagabond, ou tout autre animal avec lequel on n'a pas de lien sera désigné par it.

Composition: Our dog

We have a dog. His name is Xeno. He is a border-terrier. He is two years old. He is brown. His nose is black. He has a big mouth. He is always hungry. Xeno is a dear fellow and my best friend. He likes to play with a ball. He often chases cats.

Our neighbours have got a cat. Her name is Cissy. She likes to chase mice and birds. When she sees the dog, she runs away. But Xeno likes to chase Cissy. She climbs a tree. Xeno can't climb. He stops at the tree and barks. Cissy is happy and waits. When Xeno is tired, he goes away, and Cissy climbs down.

